CHARLESTON STILL AMERICA'S MOST MANNERLY CITY

Jan 31, 2013 (CHARLESTON, S.C.) - The Charleston School of Protocol and Etiquette, Inc. is pleased to announce the results of the 2013 Most Mannerly City in America Contest. Charleston, South Carolina has preserved its position as the Most Mannerly City of 2013. This year Savannah received the second highest number of votes, to once again secure the position as one of the Most Mannerly Cities in America. The winners were selected through online voting at: www.Charlestonschoolofprotocol.com

After winning America's Most Mannerly City designation for the 12th consecutive year, Charleston received the Lifetime Achievement Award in 2007. Charleston remains at the top in 2013 and will be receiving the Most Mannerly City Preservation Award. Savannah received the second highest number of votes and is awarded recognition as "One of the Most Mannerly Cities in America".

The Most Mannerly City contest title was first founded by etiquette expert and author, Marjabelle Young Stewart. In 2007, Ms. Grosso secured the endorsement of Stewart's family to carry on the contest. "It fits...it seems proper for [someone from] the Most Mannerly City for all these years to take it over," said William Stewart, from the Stewart home in Kewanee, Illinois.

In this year's contest, Charleston received 42% of the total votes. Savannah received 3% of the total votes, while Boston received 2% of the total votes to finish third.

The votes for the Most Mannerly City 2014 are being accepted by the Charleston School of Protocol and Etiquette, Inc. through December 31, 2014.
